Partnership Summit

Collaboration in Action

OCTOBER 23, 2019 | NEW YORK, NY

blue meridian partners

Welcome Message

We are thrilled that you can join us at our 1ST Annual Partnership Summit! This past year has been an exciting and busy time for Blue Meridian on many fronts. This Summit is a perfect opportunity for our full and growing community of investing partners, portfolio leaders, board members, management staff, advisors, new colleagues, and friends to focus on the issues that matter to us all: scaling solutions to the problems that trap young people and families in poverty and limit economic mobility in this country. We'll spend our time together putting collaboration into action by reflecting on our shared experiences, discussing challenges faced in the pursuit of transformative impact, and diving into new Blue Meridian initiatives. We look forward to your engagement and feedback as we build on this first experience.

> IF YOU WANT TO GO FAST, GO ALONE. IF YOU WANT TO GO FAR, GO TOGETHER.

Guest Speakers

A group of passionate, informed guest speakers who share our commitment to creating impact at scale will lend their perspectives and inspire deeper thinking about key topics.

Courtney Bryan

Executive Director, Head of East Region, Global Philanthropy, JPMorgan Chase

Before joining JPMorgan Chase, Courtney had a distinguished career in the nonprofit sector and the field of criminal justice reform. Prior to working for more than a decade at the Center for Court Innovation, she served as staff director for the Independent Commission on NYC Criminal Justice and Incarceration Reform. She also served as the Director of the Midtown Community Court providing assistance in the areas of community justice, human trafficking, and domestic violence. Courtney received a BA from the University of Georgia and a JD from Temple University School of Law.

Ellen Schall

Senior Presidential Fellow; Professor of Health Policy & Management, New York University
Special Advisor to Blue Meridian Partners

Ellen served as the Dean of NYU's Robert F. Wagner Graduate School of Public Service from 1992 to 2013 and currently is a senior advisor to the president of NYU. She began her career as a Legal Aid Society criminal defense attorney and was Commissioner of the NYC Department of Juvenile Justice from 1983 to 1990. She has experience in nonprofit management and governance, including 30+ years of membership on the board of University Settlement House and serving as a Special Advisor to Blue Meridian Partners. Ellen received a BA from Swarthmore College and a JD from NYU School of Law.

Evonne Silva

Senior Director, Criminal Justice and Workforce Development, Code for America

As the Senior Program Director of Criminal Justice and Workforce Development, Evonne leads the development of civic technology aimed at transforming the criminal justice and workforce development systems. Previously, she served as a legal advisor, building and leading teams, driving process improvement, and systems changes, and managing complex, collaborative projects at the ACLU of Northern California.

Evonne is an attorney, holding a JD from UCLA School of Law and a bachelor's degree from Saint Mary's College of California. She teaches legal ethics at U.C. Berkeley School of Law.

Melanie Hartzog

Director, New York City Mayor's Office of Management and Budget

Melanie Hartzog is the Director of the New York City Mayor's Office of Management and Budget. Previously, she was OMB's Deputy Director for Health and Social Services. She also served as Executive Director of the Children's Defense Fund – New York, and was the Family Services Coordinator for the Deputy Mayor for Health and Human Services where she helped launch the Young Men's Initiative, a public/private partnership to address disparities in economic and social outcomes among young men of color. Before that, she was a Deputy Commissioner within NYC's Administration for Children's Services.

Michele Jolin

CEO and Co-Founder, Results for America

Michele founded Results for America to help policymakers at every level of government harness the power of evidence and data, to improve the lives of young people, their families, and communities. Before that, Michele served in President Obama's White House as the Senior Advisor for Social Innovation, and was appointed to the White House Council for Community Solutions. Michele also was a Senior Fellow at the Center for American Progress, an SVP at the global foundation, Ashoka, and the Chief of Staff for President Clinton's Council of Economic Advisors.

Robert Gordon

Director, Michigan Department of Health and Human Services

In his current role, Robert oversees Medicaid, child welfare, food assistance, and public health programs, managing a $25 billion budget and 14,000 employees.

Previously, he served as Senior Vice President of Finance and Global Strategy for the College Board, an acting assistant secretary at the U.S. Department of Education, and Acting Deputy Director at the U.S. Office of Management and Budget. He has been a fellow at the Brookings Institution and the Urban Institute.

Robert earned his bachelor's degree at Harvard University and his JD from Yale University.

Scott Budnick

Founder, The Anti-Recidivism Coalition (ARC), One Community; Producer, "Just Mercy"

Following a successful career in the film industry as the Executive Producer of The Hangover film franchise, Due Date, and War Dogs, Scott went on to launch ARC, where he lobbied lawmakers for legislation that would help give the incarcerated support with jobs and opportunities once released. Realizing that the fusion of entertainment and culture were powerful tools to advance social impact, Scott then launched the film, tv, and new media company, One Community, to focus on creating content that can move the needle on social change. This led to the production of Just Mercy, adapted from Bryan Stevenson's bestselling book, and Firefighters, depicting women that fight California wildfires while incarcerated.

Tanya Coke

Director of Gender, Racial, and Ethnic Justice, Ford Foundation

In her current role, Tanya focuses on issues of mass incarceration, harsh treatment of immigrants, and gender and reproductive justice. She began her career at the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund as a researcher. After attending law school, she practiced as a trial attorney in the Federal Defender Division of the Legal Aid Society.

Tanya is a graduate of the New York University School of Law and holds an undergraduate degree from Yale.

Pipeline Pilot

This year, Blue Meridian launched a pilot which tests how organizations can prepare to expand and achieve significantly greater impact more quickly. We are now partnering with seven exemplary nonprofits with compelling models and visionary leadership.

Sherry Riva, Founder & Executive Director
Markita Morris-Louis, Chief Strategy Officer

Compass Working Capital supports families with low incomes to build assets and financial capabilities as a pathway out of poverty to greater economic opportunity. Compass leverages an existing federal housing initiative – the Family Self-Sufficiency (FSS) program – to help families with low incomes reach their financial goals. Compass has developed and refined an approach to the FSS program that builds on expert research, the principles of a national asset-building movement, and over thirteen years of on-the-ground experience.

It has partnered with public housing authorities to operate its FSS program model since 2010. Compass has also worked with owners of units subsidized by the Project-Based Rental Assistance program since 2015, when that program was first made eligible by Congress to operate FSS, and it is exploring the use of automatic enrollment with "opt-out" provisions and digital learning to streamline partner training and supports to enable more rapid expansion. Compass recently began expanding services through an affiliate model in Philadelphia.

Jim McCorkell, Founder & Chief Executive Officer
Traci Kirtley, Chief Program Officer

College Possible makes college admission and success possible for low-income students through an intensive curriculum of coaching and support. The key to its success is through near-peer coaching—leveraging the power of dedicated and passionate recent college graduates serving as AmeriCorps members to offer mentoring and support to students from low-income backgrounds as they navigate the often complex world of college preparation and persistence.

In 2016, College Possible launched a new partnership model called Catalyze, which was born out of the belief that an innovative approach to increasing college success for low-income students could be embedded on college campuses and scaled to serve many more students. Catalyze builds the capacity of four-year colleges by providing a research-based curriculum, training and tools to integrate near-peer coaching into their operations, extending the reach of existing infrastructure.

Lisa Daugaard, Director of the Public Defender Association
Tara Moss, Project Director

The Law Enforcement Assisted Diversion (LEAD) model uses a community-based diversion approach to reduce criminal justice involvement for people with behavioral health disorders while improving public safety and order and reducing illegal behavior. Built on cooperative, multi-agency partnerships of law enforcement, health agencies, community-based service organizations, and community leaders, LEAD is designed to help communities develop new ways to respond to problematic behaviors and collateral consequences (such as repeated disruptive or criminal conduct and chronic homelessness) that can be associated with unmanaged mental illness or substance use, or extreme poverty.

A program of the Public Defender Association in Seattle, the LEAD National Support Bureau provides strategic guidance and technical support to jurisdictions developing LEAD programs. The Bureau is led and staffed by public health and justice system veterans, and also draws on the expertise of prosecutors, police, case managers and community public safety leaders who implement LEAD projects and are willing to share lessons learned with their peers around the country.

Jesús Gerena, Chief Executive Officer
David Henderson, Chief Technology Officer

Family Independence Initiative (FII) believes that there are three addressable factors contributing to the cycle of poverty: (1) lack of information about creative ways to achieve social mobility; (2) failure to harness the power of communities in supporting families; and (3) limited access to affordable capital. FII is centered on addressing all three factors by partnering with families to help them maximize their own networks and resources to guide themselves out of poverty.

FII fosters an environment that encourages self-determination and mutual support, and where access to resources is determined by strengths and not deficits. FII staff do not direct cohorts or make decisions; rather, families form communities and set their own goals, find solutions and initiate action. As they take initiative, families gain access to more resources that can accelerate their efforts. FII uses what it learns from family data and stories to shift perceptions and practices of others to trust and invest directly in families experiencing poverty.

Jean Desravines, Chief Executive Officer
Matt Kelemen, Executive Director

New Leaders prepares education leaders to deliver breakthrough results in America's highest-need schools and advocate for policies that enable great leaders — and their students — to thrive. Working hand-in-hand with partners, New Leaders cultivates diverse and talented educators, providing high-quality leadership training that prepares them to elevate instruction across their schools, accelerate student learning, and build a brighter future for their communities.

New Leaders is now focused on deepening its impact in select high-poverty cities by helping districts identify and address their most pressing leadership development needs. With this new focus on building district capacity to recruit, develop and retain high-quality leadership at multiple levels, New Leaders aims to fundamentally change the way districts develop and support transformational school leaders.

Melissa Connelly, Chief Executive Officer
Patty Diaz-Andrade, New Delivery Models Lead

OneGoal is a national organization of teachers, students, school leaders and education advocates working to close the degree divide, ensuring young people have an equitable opportunity to achieve their greatest postsecondary aspirations. OneGoal collaborates with public schools in low-income communities, providing teachers with a robust curriculum, technology, training and coaching to implement its three-year model with a group of 25 students ("Fellows") per cohort.

Teachers (Program Directors) support the same group of Fellows beginning in 11th grade, bridging the gap during their first year after high school graduation. In communities where students typically have a 22% chance of graduating from college, 81% of OneGoal high school graduates enroll in a postsecondary institution and 86% of those who enroll persist one year later.

Claudia Miner, Vice President of Development
Andy Myers, Chief Operating Officer

Waterford UPSTART is an in-home, technology-delivered kindergarten-readiness program that gives preschool-aged children individualized reading, math and science instruction with a focus on reading. The curriculum targets improvements in literacy and math, particularly important dimensions of kindergarten readiness. UPSTART also offers a robust parent engagement program to support and involve families. The program monitors children's usage, progress, and outcomes. Social/emotional learning is provided in the software and modeled offline with parents.

Children enroll in UPSTART the year before they enter kindergarten at no cost to families. Computers and internet are provided to qualifying homes without them so the children are able to access the curriculum at home for 15 minutes a day, five days a week. On average, children graduate UPSTART at kindergarten-advanced level.

Keynote Conversation

Our keynote speakers are distinguished public leaders representing different regions and levels of government. They will engage in a dynamic conversation, first together and then with the room, on the issues and challenges discussed throughout the day.

Melody Barnes

Co-Director, The Democracy Initiative

Melody Barnes is Co-Director of the Democracy Initiative at the University of Virginia. She is a Professor of Practice at the Miller Center of Public Affairs and Distinguished Fellow at the School of Law. Barnes co-founded MB^2 Solutions LLC, a public affairs firm, and currently serves as an independent director on the boards of Ventas, Inc., Booz Allen Hamilton, and the Marguerite Casey Foundation. She also chairs the Aspen Institute Forum for Community Solutions and Opportunity Youth Forum.

From January 2009 until January 2012, Ms. Barnes was the Assistant to the President and Director of the White House Domestic Policy Council. She provided strategic advice to President Obama and worked closely with members of the Cabinet coordinating the domestic policy agenda across the Administration. Under her leadership, innovative new policies, practices and partnerships were initiated to address significant national challenges, including education, health care and the federal government's relationship with local governments and communities.

Until July 2008, Ms. Barnes was the Executive Vice President for Policy at the Center for American Progress, a progressive research institute and think tank. From December 1995 until March 2003, Ms. Barnes worked for Senator Edward M. Kennedy on the Senate Judiciary Committee, serving as his chief counsel from 1998 until she left the Committee. Barnes' experience also includes an appointment as the Director of Legislative Affairs for the U. S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. Ms. Barnes began her career as an attorney with Shearman & Sterling in New York City.

Ms. Barnes received her law degree from the University of Michigan in 1989. In 1986, she received her bachelor's degree from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill where she graduated with honors in history.

Gina M. Raimondo

Governor of Rhode Island

Gina M. Raimondo, the 75TH Governor of Rhode Island and its first woman governor, grew up in Smithfield in a tight-knit Italian-American family. Gina's family history and her childhood experiences shaped her core beliefs in hard work, opportunity for all, and the importance of financial security.

After arriving from Italy at age 14, her grandfather learned English studying in the Providence Public Library. Her father was a World War II Navy veteran and became the first in his family to attend college thanks to the GI Bill. After working for 26 years at Bulova watch factory in Providence, Joseph lost his job when the factory moved overseas, and the Raimondo family lost their sense of financial security.

As a teenager, Gina rode a RIPTA bus to LaSalle Academy in Providence, where she was valedictorian of her graduating class. She graduated with honors from Harvard, won a Rhodes Scholarship to Oxford University and graduated from Yale Law School. Gina went on to co-found Point Judith Capital, an early stage venture capital firm.

In November 2010, Gina was elected to serve as General Treasurer of Rhode Island, receiving the largest number of votes of any statewide candidate. As Treasurer she tackled the state's $7 billion unfunded pension liability. She took office as Governor in 2015 and kick-started the state's economy. Rhode Island's unemployment rate—the highest in the country during her first campaign for governor—is now in line with the national average and the lowest it's been in three decades. In 2017, the New York Times declared that, "Ms. Raimondo's frenzy of economic and job development is striking."

Gina won a second term this past November with the largest victory Rhode Island has seen in more than a generation.

Mitch Landrieu

Former Mayor of New Orleans; Founder, E Pluribus Unum Fund

Mitch Landrieu was the 61ST Mayor of New Orleans (2010-2018). When he took office, the city was still recovering from Hurricane Katrina and in the midst of the BP Oil Spill. Under Landrieu's leadership, New Orleans is widely recognized as one of the nation's great comeback stories.

In 2015, Landrieu was named "Public Official of the Year" by Governing, and in 2016 was voted "America's top turnaround mayor" in a Politico survey of mayors. He gained national prominence for his powerful decision to take down four Confederate monuments in New Orleans, which also earned him the prestigious John F. Kennedy Profile in Courage Award. In his New York Times best-selling book, In the Shadow of Statues: A White Southerner Confronts History, Landrieu recounts his personal journey confronting racism, and tackles the broader history of slavery, race relations, and institutional inequalities that still plague America.

He recently launched the E Pluribus Unum Fund, which will work to bring people together across the South around the issues of race, equity, economic opportunity and violence.

Prior to serving as Mayor, Landrieu served two terms as lieutenant governor and 16 years in the state legislature. He also served as President of the U.S. Conference of Mayors.

Our Portfolio

Blue Meridian's work has three main thrusts: evidence-based strategies scaling nationally, comprehensive regional strategies, and a continual pipeline of innovations. We are building a portfolio of solutions that work to increase economic mobility and opportunity for young people and families living in poverty. Blue Meridian Partners has committed more than $530 million to these philanthropic investments to date.

National Scaling

Each Blue Meridian national investee pursues an ambitious goal of solving a significant social problem that hinders young people and families who live in poverty and have limited economic mobility from leading healthy, successful lives. Each has a comprehensive scaling strategy that expands critical services and sparks larger policy and systems reforms.

Regional Strategies

The regional strategies, spearheaded by Regional General Partners in Tulsa, Oklahoma (George Kaiser Family Foundation) and Guilford County, North Carolina (The Duke Endowment), integrate Blue Meridian's national investees into a comprehensive continuum of local services. They aim to produce the strongest possible outcomes for young people and families living in poverty with the end goal of achieving community-wide impact.
